Christ Church invites applications for a Stipendiary Lecturer in Physiology and Pharmacology. This is a permanent position to fulfil a standing teaching need.

Christ Church

Christ Church, one of the largest colleges of Oxford University, is strongly committed to teaching and research. The College has around 470 undergraduates and 250 graduates, and around 200 senior members. Our academics teach their students in tutorials, a system which enables undergraduates to work with experienced tutors in small groups. The subjects offered at Christ Church cover the whole spectrum, including Arts, Social Sciences, Medical Sciences and Physical Sciences. Christ Church tutors strongly believe in the joint pursuit of teaching and research. For more information please visit: <https://www.chch.ox.ac.uk/>.

Christ Church provides all our staff with a welcoming and inclusive workplace that enables everyone to develop and to do their best work. Join us and you will find a friendly, vibrant, democratic, and international community, with a great range of staff benefits.

Medicine at Christ Church

Medical Sciences are strongly represented at Christ Church. The Regius Professorship in Medicine was established early in the college's life, in 1546, and the Lee Readership in Anatomy established in 1776, with Christ Church housing Oxford's first anatomy dissection theatre turned anatomy museum (this is now the room in which the SCR lunches). The College's current medical fellowship includes two Organising Tutors for Medicine, currently Stephanie Cragg (Professor of Neuroscience) and Nicola Smart (Professor of Cardiovascular Science), Director of Clinical Medicine Dr Michala Pedersen, Research Fellows Sarah Rowland-Jones (Professor of Immunology), Stefan Neubauer (Professor of Cardiovascular Medicine, Head of the Division of Cardiovascular Medicine, Director OCMR) and Richard Wade-Martins (Professor of Molecular Neuroscience), Senior Associate Research Fellow Mike English (Professor of International Child Health), and a Career Development Fellow in Biomedical Sciences, Dr Simon Bossi. Our medical Honorary Fellows include Dr Henrietta Hughes OBE (Patient Safety Commissioner for England) and Professor Irene Tracey CBE FRS (Vice-Chancellor of Oxford), Professor Dame Sarah Gilbert DBE, FRS (Professor of Vaccinology), Professor Dennis Lo FRS, FRCP, FRCPath (Vice-Chancellor and President of The Chinese University of Hong Kong). Our Tutors and additional team of biomedical lecturers nurture current cohorts of 30-40 students reading Medicine (preclinical and clinical), and around 25 postgraduates working towards higher degrees across the Medical Sciences. We welcomed our first cohort of Biomedical Sciences students in October 2025. Christ Church has an active Bio-Medical Society, providing a social forum for the biomedical community at Oxford to network and invite distinguished speakers.

Duties of the post

The successful candidate will be expected to deliver one hour of tutorial teaching per week, averaged over the three eight-week terms of each academic year. The College operates a 'weighted hours' scheme, under which a one-to-one tutorial counts as one stint hour, a double tutorial as 1.25 hours; a triple as 1.5 hours. Tutorials consist of an hour of academic discussion between tutor and students, and tutors are expected to mark written work as part of each tutorial.

The lecturer will be expected to provide tutorial teaching for the following papers:

"Physiology and Pharmacology" (1st BM Part 1 = Year 1) and "Applied Physiology and Pharmacology" (1st BM Part 2 = Year 2), covering areas of cellular, cardiovascular, respiratory, renal and gastrointestinal physiology.

Details of current courses are included in the advert on our website and can be found here:

Prospective applicants who are unfamiliar with the Oxford system may find helpful the discussion of what an Oxford tutorial entails in the following video:

- Participate in the undergraduate admissions exercise, including reading of UCAS forms and conducting interviews, if required.
- Assist with general oversight of the welfare (both academic and pastoral) of Christ Church undergraduates reading Medicine.
- Assist with the general administration of the teaching of Medicine at Christ Church.

Selection Criteria

The selection criteria are as follows:

- A completed doctorate, or evidence that one will be substantially complete before the start date, in Medicine, or a closely related field.
- Evidence of the skills for successful tutorial teaching, including the ability to explain problems and ideas lucidly, listen to students' questions and views sympathetically, and enthuse and inspire them.
