Lunchtime Lecture
Wednesday. 30th January 2019
at 12.00 noon in the McKenna Room, Christ Church.

Corpses in the Cathedral
Speaker: Kate Charles

Crime novels set in and around churches, cathedrals and monasteries are not a new phenomenon – they are practically as old as the genre itself, and far more numerous than most people imagine. Kate Charles explores the strange affinity between churches and crime and introduces us to a number of clerical detectives, clerical victims, and even a few clergy villains.

Kate Charles, a past Chairman of the Crime Writers’ Association and the Barbara Pym Society, is American by birth but has lived in England for over thirty years. She was co-organizer of the annual St. Hilda’s Crime and Mystery Conference in Oxford for 23 years, and is a member of the prestigious Detection Club. Her twelve crime novels, including the Callie Anson series and the ‘Book of Psalms’ series, are set against the background of the Church of England.

Following the talk, there will be a sandwich lunch with wine or soft drinks tea/coffee.
